Narrative summary of grant related activities

Please provide a brief summary (no more than 1500 characters). You may attach supplemental documents if needed.

Quarter 1	This quarter BWS moved forward with solidifying community partnerships for the project and searching for key people to implement our program. We launched our partnership with Asheville City Schools so that Black Wall Street, Jr is an official club inside Asheville School System. We partnered with Entrepreneurs in Schools and Franklin School of Innovation for their upcoming InnovationFest celebration. We partnered with Thrive AVL to evaluate and refine our approach to the tourism specific cohort answering the question "How can tourism benefit BIPOC businesses in Buncombe County." We partnered with The Radical Hotel (new construction in the River Arts District) to sell items sourced from BWS in their hotel gift shop to be featured at the Grant opening in October. We secured leverage from Arts AVL to partner with local historian Priscilla Robinson. BWS is partnering for the launch of her Urban Renewal Impact display of the Black History of Asheville's historic Southside. This includes sourcing the information and photos from her personal research and covering the cost of the production, printing, and installation. This is set for release and display during an event we call "Christmas in Southside: Enjoying the holiday with southside past, present, and future." We connected local Community Elder and businessman Todd Gragg to Rotary club and partnered to host a viewing of "Black in Asheville" Documentary at Asheville Community Theater. We were challenged by a team member having health challenges, but were able to recruit new members to help cover tasks to ensure program success and continuity. BWS member Clarence Robinson opened his new Brick & Mortar food business on Merrimon Ave,.

Quarter 2	During this quarter we worked more deeply with entrepreneurs and finalized our Logic Model. We partnered with Thrive AVL to build capacity in our organization and create a framework for how to support the growth of Entrepreneurs. We engaged with Aisha Adams of Equity over Everything to direct the project and implementation. In response to the gap in BIPOC business participation in tourism, we created the GATE program (Greater Access to Tourism for Entrepreneurs) to house our efforts of increasing the participation of BIPOC businesses in the tourism economy. We enrolled 25 new businesses in this program. We partnered with Mountain Bizworks to facilitate helping these businesses get the education and funding they need. We partnered with the Doula of Entrepreneurship to provide culturally responsive intake that recognizes trauma and helps them move forward despite barriers. We also utilized Jeff Kaplan's E-13 assessment that is a national benchmark for entrepreneurial competencies. This assessment creates the curriculum for our work this year. Funding from this grant has been paired with other funds so that we can serve more people. One participant faced an emergency rent challenge after losing her job. We did not have a funding source to help, but referred her to other community agencies. None of them were able to help. As such, we began meeting with our partners and community supports to raise money for "barrier removal". While people of color are trying to build their businesses, they are also faced with the normally challenges of economic disparities in Buncombe County. One partner has experience with supporting entrepreneurs that face poverty and how to remove barriers to their success. Our next mile marker is the Ideas2Action meeting on January 26. We have engaged 25 tourism partners who will come an (1) learn about the disparities in our ecosystem (2) collaborate on how to engage more BIPOC businesses in the tourism industry. That same evening we will meet with the cohort members to review their plans for the year, outline their learning mile markers, and continue softskills training for entrepreneurs.

Comments:

first quarter reimbursement ($12,800) was overpaid by $3847 . Upon matching invoices to the transaction report, the actual expenses are as noted above ($8,953). Considering the total amount paid, the remaining reimbursement owed to BWS according to presented reciepts and invoices = $20,136. CALCULATED AS FOLLOWS: Q1 payment - Q1 expenses = $3847 (overpayment). Q2 expenses ($23,983) - overpayment ($3847) = $20,136 (amount owed to BWS).
