I Have Lost My Way,*
by Gayle Forman

This is an amazing novel tying three lost teenagers together. When a fateful accident affects all three strangers, they begin to realize what they have lost alone and what they will find together. Freya, with her lost voice, Harun, planning to leave everyone he loves, and Nathaniel, hopeless in NYC, with nowhere left to go besides up. If you liked her other books, you will LOVE this one.

In this achingly beautiful story from the bestselling author of I Have Lost My Way, Gayle Forman ties together three complex characters in a story of losing, finding, and discovering love and trust within themselves and others.

Something Real,*
by Heather Demetrios

Based off of the one-time hit reality show Baker's Dozen, this story follows the oldest Baker, Bonnie™ during her last years on the show. With thirteen kids and two very stressed parents, Bonnie™ is living in pure Hell. Her mom and stepdad decide on the worst decision ever; they put the show back on air, but only after Bonnie™ and her siblings have built a new, normal life. Now, she's on the edge of losing everything, including things she didn't know she had. No one in power will let her quit, so Bonnie™ has to take things into her own hands, all in the few short months before she graduates. Loaded with raw, hurtful truths, but also full of humor and laughs, Heather Demetrios spins a wonderful tale with just the right amount of everything.
